The overall performance of the Z6 is surely above the mother. In the configuration of 50Is, the image is smooth and without a good detail. He seems quite retro-futurizing, with his chrome detailing him more than an art deco to last in the design of the admission of the San Flash Gordon of the 1930. even without the use of a flash or trip. The Z6 has an ISO range of 50 to 320, but even in the highest configuration there is little visible rifle, just a slight loss of detail. The big tightening of mothers with its textured rubber insertion makes Z6 fit down and firmly in the right mother. A € "at 100 ISO still not an appreciable rifle. Nevertheless, many manufacturers still project their digital cars to resemble film cars, at least in the general appearance. In addition, Konica Minolta's CCD-SHIFT Anti-Shake system used in Konica Minolta's Single Lens-Reflex Digital Single-Reflex (SLR), and the first highlight in the image Câ rie of digital cars à "allows phot" to shoot with shutter speeds four to eight times longer (2-3 stops) than when they shoot without an anti-shake system. For those with a dial-up connection, be patient while the pages download. There are many details in this shot. Here, the full size image has been reduced for bandwidth purposes, and a harvest taken from the original full resolution image was placed below it, in order to obtain an appreciation of the overall quality. Instead, they are projected with purely digital functionality in mind, and the result is one of the strangest but better manipulation in the market. When it is launched the Câ c mera stores the last ten images. The focus speed is very good at daylight, taking about 0.2 seconds to block.
